

COL. HUGO STURM'S EXPLOITS.

He Claims to be a Kinsman of Victor Hugo—Describes his Wife and Marries an Author—A Letter from his Wife.

Correspondence of The Sun.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 10.—I doubt not you have heard of Mr. Edouard Cadet of Macon. She was a little girl of ten years old some time ago by a New York publishing house, is a very beautiful woman, and was a leader of society in Macon, and attracted considerable attention wherever she went. Possessed of engaging manners, witty and brilliant in conversation, she was calculated to shine in any circle.

A few days ago there appeared in the Macon Telegraph a paragraph announcing the marriage of Mrs. Cadet to Col. Victor Hugo Sturm of Louisville, Ky. In connection with this announcement it was stated, though not in the Telegraph, that Col. Sturm was a relative of Victor Hugo, the French novelist, and that he had presented to his bride a cushion ring which had been worn by Victor Hugo himself. All this was rather a flourish of propagandistic rhetoric that may have been very satisfactory at the time, but which was not so when another paragraph came under the observation of another Mrs. V. H. Sturm, who claims to be the true owner of the cushion ring of the gallant Colonel. The second Mrs. Sturm claims to be a plain prosaic sort of woman, and in a manner of speaking the Knoxville (Tenn.) Press and Times said:

To the Public.—A newspaper clipping copied from the New York papers to me by my husband and his relatives, but conveying the information that my husband Hugo Sturm, for his name is not Mr. Sturm, but Mr. Sturm, is the man mentioned in the news of the newspapers I am now writing in regard to this marriage, but it is not so. My husband has married a number of women, but for the articles of separation or divorce have been obtained by him, and he has never been separated from any woman since he left his wife. He has written to me asking about our children.

Mr. Sturm is no relation whatever of Victor Hugo, but that he is a son of the author's mother, near Cincinnati. He and I have two other children, and we are now separated. My husband has given the ring back to his mother, and is now a widower.
